Mrs Wonder is taking her class of superheroes on a school trip to the museum. They aren't allowed to use their powers which may be easier said than done! When Vanish goes missing, Winter accidentally freezes Mrs Wonder solid and Flame causes a fire trying to thaw her out, Mrs Wonder decides it might be best to use her own powers to get them all out of a sticky situation.

The children at Swoopstown School for Superheroes were super excited about their trip to the museum.
"Quiet now," called Mrs Wonder. "I need to tell you the rules before we leave."
The children groaned.
"No running off in the museum," Mrs Wonder told them. "We need to stay together."

"No running?" said Zoom, looking fed up.
"And no shouting," added Mrs Wonder.
"NO SHOUTING!" yelled Boom Boy, making the classroom walls shake.
Mrs Wonder pretended not to hear.
"And no using your superpowers in public," she finished.

"How about a short heat blast to melt the ice?" said Flame. "I can do it now, while no one's watching."
"You'll have to hurry," said Eagle, peering through the museum wall. "Another group of children is just coming in."

Flame pointed at the block of ice. The tips of her fingers began to glow.
Crackle. Little streams of flame reached towards the ice.
Sizzle! The ice began to melt. It was working!
